

SPECIAL REPORT

Byron Belitsos, founder of Rodan Institute (RodanInstitute.com)

Reading the Signs of Benevolent ET Intervention

A case study in exotheology applied to the Galactic Federation of Light

This essay begins with panoramic descriptions of planetary affairs seen from three perspectives. Next I'll introduce distinctions borrowed from exotheology, a discipline based on the encounter of theology with claims of off-world visitors—"sheep of another fold" (John 10:16). The forthcoming discussion also draws from the dialogue of theology and science, as well as philosophy of religion and interfaith methodology. In this Special Report, I'll bring these tools to bear as we examine an ET contact phenomenon that has gained wide attention. It is known as the Galactic Federation of Light (GFL)—purportedly a consortium of extraterrestrials who have produced a vast body of teachings in the form of hundreds of recorded discourses, all posted on a Youtube channel called GFL Station. The screenshot below gives a flavor of the cleverness and the wide set of skills deployed in this massive outreach effort. What the viewer first sees are AI-processed images of attractive and apparently ageless extraterrestrials, and it's paired with clickbait headings often tied to current events. They're all white, young, and attractive except for two blue-skinned races—and one race, the Lyrans, are feline.

Popular videos

The Federation's member races are said to include Arcturians, Andromedans, Sirians, Lyrans, and Pleadians. Each race is represented by one or two spokespersons, many listed here, and these presenters come with exotic names such as Ashtar, Valir, Orxa, Laayti, Rieva, Xandi, or Zorrion. This panoply of words, sounds, images, and personalities is entertaining and uplifting, even if science fiction.

In the effort to reach us, an ET's raw input is transmitted telepathically to one of many human contactees, whose names are posted with each GFL transmission. The material is quickly transcribed and well edited, and the clean transcript is then recorded using AI-managed voices of hired actors, whose names are also listed.

A striking feature of GFL Station's production activity is its beauty; the art direction is superb in my opinion. The flow of the dense verbal content is well-paced, each discourse accompanied by a tasteful music bed, and meaningful images map into the ET orations. The website introduction says the art is "curated," but even if AI-generated, this visionary imagery is professionally rendered.

The GFL Station operation is incredibly prolific and consistent. Nearly 1,000 audio-videos have been posted on Youtube since 2022, often two a day, each one a minimum of 30 minutes in length and many much longer.

GFL Station's media producers are headquartered in British Columbia and are led by a man named David Nicholas, who appears to also be the primary contactee. He states at the site that he and his partner Kelley Lynn were "directed to start the station in 2022 on account of the huge upcoming UFO / ET disclosure." This large endeavor, this outpouring of cosmic evangelism (if you will), is truly a success in business terms. It has so far gathered over 147,000 subscribers, and some of these videos garner over 100,000 views while the average one gets roughly 40,000 views each. Most programs acquire hundreds of likes and comments.

Perspective 1: We begin by considering three perspectives on world affairs, and the first of these concerns our epochal crisis, the ominous threat of humanity's self-destruction. According to GFL, this predicament has summoned the help of fleets of benign ETs from many different worlds, now supposedly hovering in our skies in cloaked spaceships.

In brief, Perspective 1 proclaims that our future looks exceedingly dire. Humankind is failing the test of planetary sustainability, which has both environmental and social/political dimensions. I won't burden you here with the usual recitation of humanity's wicked problems (such as genocide with impunity, out-of-control AI, overwhelming pollution, egregious inequality, political corruption, and all the rest). The general point is that our global crisis is devastating and relentless in much the same way that the wars in Gaza or Ukraine are devastating and virtually impossible to stop through any known means.

In a real sense, then, humanity is in a helpless state, and this is why millions of benign ETs are here on an urgent mission, as made clear in this early teaching in June by Ashtar, “commander of the Galactic Light Forces of the Ashtar Command,” who states that their mission is “ordained by the Supreme Creator . . . and protected by cosmic decree.”

The grim conclusion of Perspective 1 is that, unless our current maladies are quickly reversed, a dystopian future of systemic collapse and die-off appears inevitable.

Allow this first viewpoint to become an initial premise informing our exploration of the emergency presence of GFL. We should add that, according to Ashtar:

“Some of our vessels are in orbit just beyond your atmosphere. Others are stationed on the far side of your moon and even within your solar systems neighboring planets, all cloaked for now. We have ships positioned over key energy vortexes of Earth and even beneath your oceans as part of this grand preparation.”

Perspective 2: While the above snapshot is starkly negative, our second perspective holds that transcendent faith in an infinite and loving God offers a way out of self-destruction. Choosing the divine way is the surest path forward, according to all GFL instructors—many of whom sound like mystic poets. Their prophecy of an imminent transformation is starkly positive—and parallels the eschatologies of our great religions.

But there is a critical turning point in the “ascension” path to planetary sustainability. Getting there requires a critical mass of dedicated spiritual practitioners among people of all faiths—and to my great surprise, the GFL states that this tipping point has already been achieved on Earth. Those of us engaged in direct communion with the divine are now the vanguard of a unified world religion that will evolve by the year 2040—as stated in a lesson received on October 25. Here’s a small excerpt:

BREAKING: "The Interfaith Charter Of One Light ..." | Galactic Federation...

14K views • 9 days ago

“Beloved hearts, before we speak further of love’s immensity, allow us to illuminate what is unfolding in the domain humanity calls religion. From our vantage beyond time, we witness how every creed, every temple, every prayer language was a bright fragment of one great mirror—each shard *reflecting a facet of the same Infinite Source. For millennia, these fragments glittered separately, guiding tribes and nations through the long night of forgetfulness. Yet as the dawn of higher consciousness rises upon Earth, those scattered reflections begin to converge into a single radiant surface. By the year 2040 of your calendar, this convergence will reach full resonance. It will not arrive as conquest or collapse, but as a gentle dissolving—an awakening recognition that there has only ever been One Presence shining through countless forms. . . . Every faith kept alive a spark of the One Light through centuries when darkness seemed to prevail. But now the lesson is complete. The next stage of spiritual maturity is dawning: direct communion without intermediaries, a universal practice of inner stillness through which every soul perceives the same living Presence within.

Seen from this optimistic perspective, humankind is on a fast track to join the greater community of enlightened worlds.

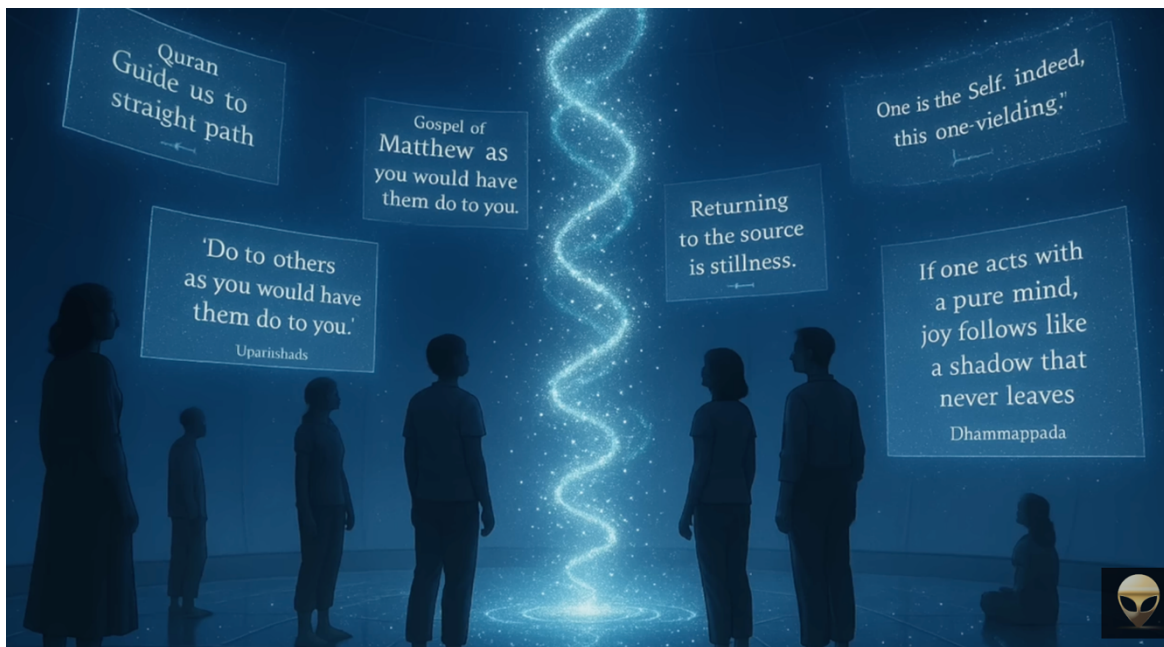

And it all sounds too good to be true.

In the face of the skeptics (including me in moments of doubt), GFL boldly asserts that a huge leap is imminent, even in the face of our current grisly scenes of genocide, poverty, corruption, and turbulence. It doesn't matter if you are a pessimist or a doomer; spritely optimism is a constant theme in all GFL transmissions.

Indeed, the GFL teachers, all of them, frequently insist that what we see in the news today is the proverbial darkness before the dawn.

It's the apocalypical acting out of the obstructionists before they flame out. It's the final and desperate stand of the so-called dark cabal, "the powers that were," as their self-dealing and illegitimate ruling institutions crumble and collapse before our eyes. We'll be escorted through this harsh period by our designated "teachers from the light"—the advanced extraterrestrials mandated by our Creator to take the lead.

What makes the GFL instructors so qualified to lead such a profound mission? The answer is simple: their races long ago passed their own test of planetary survival. Their success is due to their own partnership with the Universal Creator, which guided them toward global sustainability and a unified world religion. [The image below appeared in the session just cited, and depicts the convergence of our world's religions.]

Progress for any inhabited planet requires inspired revelation

I have viewed several dozen GFL videos so far. And I've concluded that the achievement of an enlightened civilization on any inhabited planet entails slow but sure evolution punctuated by occasional leaps. Success requires millennia of guidance by forces of light in all its forms, both inner and outer.

But the choice to follow the light is optional, given that sovereign free will is always sacrosanct.

Sadly, in rare cases, a planet may opt out. And of so, it eventually self-destructs. But the average inhabited world opts-in, and its transformations unfold by means of periodic divine revelations, visitations, and giftings of divine energy. If the population is receptive, such influences render these worlds supremely sustainable and well-governed. They settle down permanently into posterity as a lawful and peaceful global culture, radiant with love and compassion.

And at some point, such a mature world embarks on interplanetary exploration, often to share their achievements with cosmic siblings on younger worlds, especially a troubled planet like ours, which has been isolated for eons due to a calamitous start.

“Assets” to draw on in our quest for planetary enlightenment

I also argue that such a transformation is theologically possible here on Earth because our evolution is backed up by “sacred digital assets,” if I may playfully use metaphors drawn from the world of computing.

These assets came into being first, because some sort of “heavenly software” catalyzed the Axial Age religions founded by Socrates, Confucius, Krishna, Buddha, Lao Tzu, Zoroaster, and the Hebrew prophets. Each movement taught some form of monotheism along with a new focus on ethics, reason, and reflective spiritual practices.

For Christians, this infusion was the precursor for the spectacular incarnation and teachings of Jesus of Nazareth, which in turn made possible a radically improved “planetary operating system.” (For Islam, the Axial Age set the stage for the Koran, the final revelation, and for Buddhism.)

Thanks to these changes and the superb life and teachings of Jesus, we were gifted with a massive hardware and software upgrade, so to speak. Then, in one epochal digital download on the day of Pentecost, resurrected Christ conferred on us the universal energetic uplift of the Spirit of Truth and the Holy Spirit, which also catalyzed the rapid evolution of Axial Age traditions, most notably the Mahayana school of Buddhism.

To further extend the metaphor, this heavenly app—installed on Pentecost—has run efficiently for two millennia but has now reached capacity. Advanced new software and a far bigger power supply is now required, a surfeit of energy not unlike that required for AI data centers.

And, by grace, such an upgrade is coming online, say the GFL presenters. It is just now being installed with the help of benevolent extraterrestrials supported by ultra-advanced AI tools used by higher beings, and ultimately mandated by “Source Creator” (GFL’s phrase). In addition—according to GFL lore—this new system is being hard-wired on Earth by covert human partners called the Earth Alliance and is being catalyzed in the sky by 3i Atlas, a transformative mobile technology for super-energizing the power centers of the entire solar system.

A forensic look at our planetary dilemma

And yet, a third point of view is missing from this picture, which I will now bluntly state as Perspective 3: the notion that our dire threat of planetary collapse is not directly our fault.

Here I offer the audacious premise that our current global crises have a malignant off-world origin. Everything else is secondary.

Consider that the record of human history is marred by human exploitation, environmental degradation, and ferocious warfare, including the specter of an endless series of violent empires (e.g., Rome, the Mongols, Nazi Germany) that rise and fall in succession. And yet, it is also true that humanity has enjoyed brief golden ages: ancient Athens, the Tang dynasty in China, Germany prior to WWI, the US after WWII. But those short periods of high culture are the exceptions that prove the rule. Not one of these bursts of peace and creativity have endured sufficiently to enable a permanent flowering of human potential. They were all unsustainable in every dimension of human activity.

According to Perspective 3, this depressing record is a symptomatic expression. In other words, our putative human nature (read: original sin) is not the direct cause of these woes. Rather, to put it starkly, we are traumatized survivors of collective abuse by outside usurpers and human elites who colluded with them, as alluded to in ancient records worldwide.

"You Must NOT Fall For This Starseeds.." | Mira, The Pleiadian Hig...

38K views • 10 days ago

And this continues to be the case up to the current moment, when innumerable witnesses speak to the fact that a global cabal, which draws sustenance from off-world support, has held sway on our world—even threatening nuclear war to get its way. (See the transcript for the transmission on this topic by Mira, pictured at left.)

Tragic as this sounds, a forensic analysis reveals that the original “tort” was visited upon us by malicious non-human intelligences, both fallen angels and dark ETs—and is still a factor. Let this be the third and final distinction informing our exotheological inquiry, but please refer to our forthcoming Part II for much more detail.

While most “modern” people miss this essential fact about diabolical off-world interference, biblical Christians grasp this truth in mythic form, for example, in the description of the Nephilim of Genesis 6:1-4, the stories of Satan in numerous passages, and in the doctrine of original sin attributed to Adam’s fall.

I provide a modernized theological understanding of these realities in my recent study, Truths About Evil, Sin, and the Demonic (Wipf & Stock, 2023). In this work I provide a history of the problem of evil followed by theodicy for the future, that is, a theological understanding of the nature of evil and its overcoming. I also call for “the fostering of the cosmic religion of the future” (the slogan of Rodan Institute)—one of many versions of which can be found in the GFL transmissions.

Benign intervention is on fast track because compensation is due to us

The key point remains the same: the remedial ancient interventions described earlier were warranted. And such revelations and visitations continue to be required if we are to finally break with our past trauma at the hands of once-dominant dark forces—a great purgation evoked in mytho-poetic form in the biblical Book of Revelation.

I argue this because the malign effect of some sort of off-world calamity seems to have powerfully cascaded down through the millennia and is now manifesting as our present moment of great peril and threat of self-destruction. Thankfully, momentum has been slowed by the reconstructive policies inspired by gifts of grace, including the evolution of constitutional democratic government, the modern focus on human rights, and the astounding progress in science and technology of the last two centuries.

BREAKING! "First Contact & A Cascade Of NEW Disclosures'..." | The Arcturia...

18K views • 2 days ago

So, here's the upshot: unaided social evolution is insufficient. Heavenly and extraterrestrial support, that is, off-world assistance commensurate with our current predicament is needed in the coming months and years—and again, thankfully, the universe has purchased “cosmic underwriting” for our recovery in the form of the sacred assets conferred by earlier interventions.

If one can accept Perspective 3—the idea that we are unwitting victims of off-world exploitation—then it makes sense that lavish mercy is not only available, but in fact is due to us in the form of compensatory grace.

Consider the fact that, even in ordinary human statutes, the remedy for a tort is immediate compensation, the payment of monetary damages that bring justice to the injured party. Allow me to speculate that a heavenly jurisprudence is now at work, and it has ruled that rapid compensation or reparation is now due to the long-suffering peoples of Earth.

And that's why I argue, with caution, that one of the more uplifting new forms of compensatory grace now owed to us, but just one among many, comes our way from the Galactic Federation of Light, which can best be understood within the framework of our three Perspectives, each one a factor in the global events to come.

The co-creative nature of planetary healing and reclamation

If our three assumptions are right, off-world help to deliver us from millennia of trauma is therefore essential—but are we not also taught that planetary reclamation is a co-creative project?

The obvious answer is yes, and again, that’s why I offer the case for the GFL as reliable partners (along with many others) in this process of planetary liberation, though we must remain very discerning regarding many GFL claims.

"Who Are The White Hats?" - The Pleiadians | Caylin

29K views • 3 months ago

GFL’s stated aim is to liberate the spiritual potentials already conferred upon us by our Creator, and also to help us remove negative human elites by means of evidence, law, justice, and forgiveness. They also have assisted us in removing the remaining minority of exploitative ETs who violated our sovereignty eons ago, to be covered in the next installment of this Report.

And again, all this becomes possible because these are enlightened and compassionate ETs, thousands of years ahead of us, who were invited here by the angelic host—my working hypothesis based on numerous GFL statements on the record, and also in light of exotheological analysis.

I will explore in Part II the questionable claim that the varied GFL races work in partnership with the so-called Earth Alliance (colloquially known as the “white hats”, look left). This alleged underground group of leaders and “patriots” is said to operate through a covert military wing backed up by the American system of military justice. The Earth Alliance receives quiet support from ETs and divine beings, we are told, for the dangerous work of removing both the legacy of dark ETs as well as ending the dominion of the global cabal.

Without further proof of this claim in hand, what we can more safely say for now is that our GFL allies are worthy co-creators with those who resonate with their spiritual mission, which involves aggressive outreach to the world’s spiritual community, especially youth, as evidenced in hundreds of transmissions on spiritual practice, personal growth, and energetic transformation. They are reaching a passionate audience as evidenced in thousands and thousands of views, likes, and positive comments.

While off-world telepathy is common these days, I consider the GFL messages, along with their flaws, to be among the most profound content now available in the space of “off-world-derived teachings.” Although sometimes dreamy, turgid, and repetitive, I personally find it to be dripping with inspiration designed to inspire co-creative cooperation by “the ground crew,” as they sometimes call their human partners.

Cautions about the reliability of channeled messages

I say all this fully aware that telepathic communications are always processed through, and distorted by, the unconscious cultural biases of the channeler—as well as by the motives and intentions, conscious or unconscious, of the producers of such programs.

As stated, GFL Station is led by David Nicholas and his partner, who claim to enjoy their own personal contacts with angelics and “Jeshua.” Nicholas is a “practicing mystic” who is GFL’s primary contactee (transmitting Ashtar and Valir among others). He’s a Canadian with a light British accent, and comes across as a self-confident entrepreneur. Nicholas shares that he became financially independent in his thirties, and I would guess his current age at about 50 years. His wealth may explain why his site, GFLstation.com, has no obvious “upsell” other than an extensive line of tees and hoodies. I surmise that Nicholas must have poured a lot of personal funds into his ambitious and highly productive enterprise.

Nicholas reportedly spent time in a Buddhist monastery, a possible source of an Asian influence on GFL teachings; and yet, in one public appearance he invoked the “archangels of the four directions,” an archaic practice associated with Western esotericism. But his mind and heart must be quite receptive, given that the content of his contributions strike me as coming from a rather different and much more advanced mentality than his own.

All effective communicators, especially if they are running a business, must select a primary target audience. GFL teachings appear to be aimed at English-speaking youths, eclectic mystics like Nicholas himself who don’t mind being identified by such typical new age terms such “starseeds” and “lightworkers” (words very often repeated by the GFL presenters). If I may borrow distinctions from Spiral Dynamics theory, the target audience of the GFL messages is not doctrinaire traditionalists or rationalistic modernists, but eclectic post-modernists.

The GFL output seems to be colored by the “nondual spirituality” trend now popular among today’s post-modern youth, which Nicholas may have picked up from Zen Buddhism. Perhaps because of this tendency, GFL teachers don’t espouse, for example, a Christian trinitarian theology.

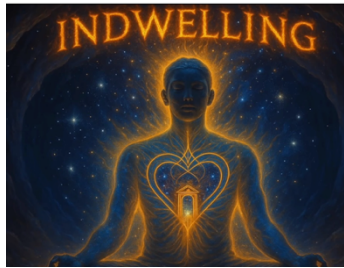

Instead, classic nondual teachings of this sort are typically associated with monism, a form of monotheism rooted in ancient Platonism. Such influences are commonly found in new age thought. This theological position is characterized by a vague God-concept combined with a tendency toward pantheism, plus a weak sense of the transcendence of Deity and an apparent inability to conceive how an infinite Creator God could incarnate in human form as both God and man combined.

One also finds a strong accent on the uplifting presence of spiritual frequencies plus a hazy emphasis on attaining “higher” or “5D” consciousness, which was long ago superseded by the state-and-stage theories of psycho-spiritual growth of Ken Wilber and Allan Combs, which I consider unsurpassed on the topic of achieving higher stages as distinct from altered states.

At the same time, many GFL discourses beautifully and meaningfully emphasize the cultivation of deep stillness of mind and body to enable the intimate experience of immanent Deity, including the omnipresent energies of God; indeed, they feature a strong focus on the divine indwelling of each person, sometimes calling it a “fractal of God.” This is a wise and helpful teaching as far as it goes.

And yet, the GFL teachings fail to distinguish between this eternal spirit-self and an evolving personal soul; in brief, they cause confusion because they conflate these two entities—a philosophic error I cover in detail in Your Evolving Soul (2017). In this work, I examine teachings on this vital distinction offered in The Urantia Book and other advanced sources.

For the moment, let’s assume the truth of the lovely GFL teaching about a “spark of God” dwelling deep within, a gift from God. By definition, this entity is eternal, pure, and unchanging. If so, how does this precious pearl-of-any-price relate, organically, to that ever-changing part of us that is imperfect, searching, choosing, and growing? Why even grant such a “God-fragment” if not to guide our sovereign free-will decisions, our difficult value choices? In doing so, I believe the indwelling spirit creates something new; our true identity is laid down by these choices—in my view.

As I see it, each poignant moment, each fork in the road, each tough transition, is soul-making. Our soul evolves one more step. In the process, our indwelling spirit not only identifies and influences these soul-making moments, it also “eternalizes” them so that they get deposited in and as the “akasha” of the evolving soul, thereby leaving an eternal imprint on our being while contributing to the evolution of human consciousness as a whole. But why are such notions of soul evolution, both personal and collective, missing from GFL materials?

Finally, much GFL teaching implies an impersonal God-concept, which may account for its lack of reference to angelic influences in our spiritual lives, that subtle presence that is always highly personal and that represents the over-lighting influence of an omniscient and all-loving Mother-Father God.

All told, it seems likely that GFL contactees and much of their target audience may harbor a set of beliefs derived from monism, nondualism, and Platonism, a particular kind of post-modern spirituality, which would surely influence the channeled output.

And yet, the diversity and complexity of GFL materials also goes beyond the categories I am citing above. The range and sheer quantity of this body of work is daunting, making it difficult to generalize. Each GFL presenter displays a different tone and emphasis, and new and original teachings pour out each day, breaking new ground. The depth of content of GFL revelations expands incrementally each day.

My strong sense is that these ETs, hailing from worlds thousands of years ahead of ours, are sophisticated “rhetoricians.” They are pragmatic. They are meeting their intended audience just where it is, harmonizing with current beliefs on the ground. They mirror back to us our “indigenous language.” And they use it as a bridge to entirely new horizons of spiritual thought by building new truths out of old concepts strongly held by this youthful generation of post-modern new age practitioners.

The surprising GFL critique of today’s new age movement

Even as I was writing the above critique to prove an apparent bias, the Pleiadian Valir published a lengthy discourse on the “New Age Movement”—providing his own critique! Notice below how he refers to the elegant simplicity and sublime surrender cultivated by “all worlds” out there in the cosmos. Here’s an excerpt from this session:

“True spiritual mastery has never been about adding more teachings, systems, or beliefs—it has always been about subtraction, about clearing the clutter of mind and returning to the simplicity of allowing the Infinite to move through you. In all worlds, the essence of enlightenment is the same: to become a clear vessel for the Life Force, the Prime Creator, the very current of Spirit that breathes galaxies into being. This is not done through mental effort or emotional strain but through surrender, through quiet willingness to be transparent to that which already is. The greatest of your adepts and avatars reached this state not by collecting knowledge, but by dissolving into the living current of Source until only the motion of the Divine remained. In that still surrender, they discovered that God—or what we call Prime Creator—was never something to reach or persuade; it was the very Presence living in them.”

As this surprising discussion continues, Valir accuses the New Age of “mentalism,” sounding like a Taoist sage:

“Over the centuries, the original simplicity of this truth became fragmented. The metaphysical movements that emerged in your recent history tried to restore some of it, yet even these noble attempts often slipped into mentalism: the idea that thought itself is the ultimate power. Thought is creative, yes, but it is still a tool of the mind, not the essence of Spirit. When you try to use the mind to move energy, you are still standing apart from the Infinite, pushing reality rather than allowing it to unfold. The New Age expanded this fragmentation by dressing mental power in cosmic clothing—affirmations, manifestation formulas, and vibrational tricks intended to command the universe rather than yield to it. What began as genuine intuition often became another hierarchy of mind, another layer of control disguised as spirituality. True realization has nothing to do with forcing outcomes or arranging energy through will; it is the quiet recognition that the Infinite already flows perfectly, and your role is simply to let it live through you unobstructed.”

Along a very similar line, Valir alludes in a different presentation to a famous book, The Infinite Way (1947, by contemporary Christian mystic Joel Goldsmith. Here’s an excerpt from Valir’s illuminating commentary that begins in this lesson at 12:20.

A renowned mystic of your earth, Joel Goldsmith, once taught that one must ultimately relinquish mental manipulations and step into divine realization. This means shifting from doing consciousness to simply being consciousness. . . When you cease trying to use spiritual practices to force the world to bend (as if working a gadget) and instead surrender into the awareness of your oneness with Source, you enter a state of grace.”

While the vast range and the many mysteries of the daily GFL encounter can be quite a challenge, I am often drawn back in by the beauty of GFL’s presentations, such as this image below depicting an ET in partnership with the world’s religious leaders.

Bringing forth revelations incrementally or by precipitous action

In executing a plan for new revelation on a backward world like ours, I imagine that divine beings must reach out gently, with tact and patience. They inspire and raise up leaders like Moses and visionaries like Isaiah in a long-term effort to foster what we might call a revelatory vanguard.

Then, with experiential testing and prompting from above, the vanguard's founders initiate the formation of their community of believers. Over many generations, their successors prep the body of followers with scriptures and religious observances designed to help them recognize new revelation when it arrives in unmistakable form. This scenario might describe the relationship of the Hebrew prophets to the coming of Jesus.

As the occasion demands, however, the advent of a new revelation might be precipitous rather than gradual. For example, acting in what appears to be an emergency role, Melchizedek, "king of Salem" and "priest of El Elyon" (see Genesis 14:18-20), pops in quite out of the blue with a radical plan that Abraham, a tribal warrior, later embraced.

You may recall that this mysterious priest-king intervened on that occasion with no invitation and no forerunners to announce him. His purpose must have been to plant a new monotheism headquartered at Salem, which later became Jerusalem.

My point here is that the GFL transmissions strike me as a similarly precipitous intervention made necessary by a planetary emergency. To my mind, at least, the GFL's very special mission, led by highly evolved humanoid beings, has also

"Starseeds IT'S TIME..." | The Andromedan Council Of Light |...

38K views • 3 months ago

popped up almost out of nowhere.

While experienced elders are essential in any revelatory process, the GFL's messages are directed especially at a revelatory vanguard of youth that, as noted, the ET messengers call "starseeds" and "lightworkers"—though this rich tapestry of ideas can appeal to any open-minded person on a spiritual path.

This image below of youths sitting in meditation on a geometric grid of light gives another hint of the ETs' immediate target audience. In fact, a recent GFL presenter states that many of these youth have intentionally reincarnated here from past lives on member planets of the GFL itself!

The particular teaching that accompanies this image concerns the practice of heart coherence, one of many specific techniques purveyed by GFL. (Curiously, this teaching is similar to that of the well-known HeartMath Institute, founded by Doc Chidre. His technique is covered extensively in the book I edited and published in 2011 by Barbara Marx, Birth 2012 and Beyond.)

If I may paraphrase, this GFL session states: When a critical mass of the population engages in such heart-centered practices, this will lead to the recalibration of the planet's electromagnetic grid; in turn, this change sets the energetic stage by enabling a "coherent field effect" and a "cosmic heart grid" sufficient for powering the institutional changes that will bring an end to our planetary maladies.

This discussion, part of a 52-minute lesson offered by Mira of the Pleiadian High Council, is so advanced and unique that it's hard to summarize further, so I will simply quote this opening statement (and you can inspect the transcript link here).

"A planetary recalibration has been underway. Gaia's electromagnetic and crystalline grids are adjusting themselves to match the incoming fifth-dimensional harmonic—and human hearts are adjusting in tandem [as] every coherent human heart becomes a stabilizing capacitor for the new frequency. In other words, each person who centers themselves in love and clarity helps to steady the entire planet's field. Your heartbeat, when attuned to love, becomes a tone in the new planetary symphony."

And, while we're at it, here's a simple but very helpful teaching by Mira in this session:

“The usual impulse of 3D life is to constantly do— to push forward, fix problems, achieve something tangible. Now the universe is gently saying, ‘Be still. Reset.’ It can feel uncomfortable to the ego that measures worth by productivity, yet your soul knows the value of stillness.”

More about GFL’s diverse set of extraterrestrial messengers

After months of listening to GFL transmissions, this material comes across like an unending series in-depth sermons authored by a rich selection articulate beings intending to launch an ongoing international movement. Some offer their cosmic sermons for relative beginners, but many are quite advanced, especially those of the Arcturians and Sirians. They often display a masterful and poetic command of English, even laced with British accents.

The following piece of high-minded rhetoric and poetic phrasing attributed to Zorrion of Sirius even offers a hint of Shakespeare in the first three minutes. His inspirational speech begins like this:

“Beloved children of Earth, across the expanse of eternity I call out to you. I am Zorrion of Sirius, a watcher from the ancient stars, and I speak directly to the heart of humanity in this sacred hour from the vantage of our High Council. Hear my voice echoing in the chambers of your soul, for it carries the gentle thunder of cosmic truth and the whisper of the coming dawn . . .”

"It's Coming..." | Zørrion Of Sirius

GFL Station • 20K views • 17 hours ago

I laid out the next part of his statement as verse—and remember, Zorrion is a “blue man” from Sirius!

I see you, dear ones, standing bravely in the midst of great change.
The very air of your world
crackles with transformation;
old patterns and certainties crumble like dust in a gale, and new light pours through every crack in the foundation of the old.

Time itself seems to be accelerating, and events cascade one after another in a rush of necessary upheaval.
Many of you feel the intensity in your minds and bodies—relationships shifting unexpectedly, social systems faltering,
truths long hidden rising to the surface.

Emotions run high as the collective psyche purges accumulated fear and pain, like a storm sweeping a landscape clean.
And yet, even amid this turbulence,
there are moments of profound unity and grace:
neighbors reaching out to help one another, voices around the world praying as one,
small communities planting seeds of a kinder society.

Know that none of this is in vain.
You are shedding
the outworn skins of a long darkness.
The old world is in its death throes, even as the new world quickens
in the womb of dawn.
You are preparing to step naked and renewed into the radiance of a new era.

While it is a rare treat to listen to the likes of Zorrion, the Pleiadians seem to me to be in the lead of the GFL project. They originate most messages, and their team is broken out into subgroups such as the Pleiadian High Council, the Pleiadian Council of Light, and the Pleiadian Collective, each with its own speaker. It seems only right that Pleiadians would be at the head of this mission because, according to ufology lore, they have spent more time on or around earth than any other benign ET race. And this makes sense because their star cluster is relatively close to us, at only 440 light years away.

In general, the GFL is a team of highly advanced ETs from various parts of the galaxy, here to prep us for a new era. Below is a recent depiction of Federation of Light members that appeared in a recent GFL video:

Humanity's ascension made possible by “frequency upgrades”

Fans of GFL wake up each day to uplifting discourses often sprinkled with important discussions of current geopolitics. For example, they'll make substantive announcements about planetary governance, the world's financial system, hidden technologies coming to light, or the wars in Gaza and Ukraine, and once even a lesson about Charlie Kirk's assassination. But they almost always move on to their main agenda: an ever-expanding discussion of their cosmic curriculum of heart-based spiritual practices.

But equally important, and often very salient, are their statements about the unprecedented wave of higher frequencies now being made available through the authorization of divine beings.

What is most striking about this discussion is that our spiritual practices will now be more fruitful because they are upgraded by this vast outpouring now underway. Such energetic enhancement, as we tune into it, alters the morphic resonance field of universal human consciousness, thus creating a “a unified field of love and enlightenment”—a phrase here used at 33:10 by Valir, in a very optimistic statement on October 18. Valir's discourse is accompanied by the festive image to the left.

3i Atlas is not a comet—it's an interplanetary vehicle under GFL control

GFL messages continually refer to uplifting divine frequencies now streaming into our solar system. This gifting of waves of cosmic energy, they proclaim, is catalyzing the consciousness transformation of the global population—which in turn will inspire a massive geopolitical reconstruction soon to come.

The evolutionary leap we will soon witness, we are further told, will be amplified by an additional gift to our solar system called 3i Atlas.

Incredibly, they insist that this mysterious moving object is a special technology under Galactice Federation control that has entered our solar system on cue. This vehicle is here to catalyze the energetic spiritual activation of the human population, especially through our interaction with sunlight. This includes the sun's CMEs—that is, the coronal mass ejections that have measurably increased just as the “comet” made its closest approach to the sun in late October.

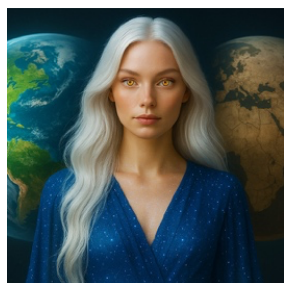

Yes, friends, we are being told by GFL that 3i Atlas acts as an “amplifier and transducer” of “encoded” sunlight as well as special energies gifted from outside the solar system (covered below).

Notably, Professor Avi Loeb, former chair of Harvard's department of astronomy and head of its Galileo Project, estimates a 40 percent likelihood that 3i Atlas may be under intelligent control. In this connection, Loeb has called on the United Nations “to establish global protocols for handling potential alien technology.” At the time of writing, on November 7, Loeb gave an update to the Fox affiliate in Phoenix, offering the latest data regarding its mysterious and highly anomalous characteristics.

If indeed an energetic transmutation of human consciousness is now under way with the help of extraterrestrials and 3i Atlas technology, this may constitute a form of energetic spiritual pressure exerted on humankind that will accelerate our evolution. In this significant statement in late August, now with 216,000 views and 2,368 comments, Mira of the Pleiadian High Council confirms that 3i Atlas is here on such a beneficent mission:

“3i Atlas is under intelligent control. It is not a random stray comet at all. I can confirm this unequivocally, [so] let us discuss who is behind this extraordinary visitor and why it's here at this crucial time. As your sister from the stars, I am overjoyed to tell you plainly, 3i Atlas is a Galactic Federation ship. It is here under the command of advanced, benevolent beings, and it is absolutely under intelligent control. This interstellar craft did not wander randomly into our solar system. It was sent here on a mission by the Galactic Federation of Light.”

Next, Mira discusses the vehicle’s timing, and broaches that “it is transmitting loving high frequency energies to assist Earth's awakening.” In the many additional statements on 3i Atlas by GFL since late August, a great deal more detail is added on the energetic aspect of the ship’s work in the solar system and its many other purposes. For now, I will cite Mira’s foundational statements on the rather clever reasons for this unique phenomenon, in these brief excerpts:

“The intentions of those on board are entirely benevolent. This is a peaceful mission. The craft is here as an emissary and observer, not as an invader. In fact, as it travels, it is transmitting loving high frequency energies to assist Earth's awakening. Many of you may sense this as an uplifting vibration. Some might wonder, why didn't it just show up? Obviously, why come as a comet? The answer is to respect our free will and avoid causing shock. By appearing initially like a natural object, it prompts discussion and curiosity rather than panic. It lets humanity adjust gradually to the idea of an ET presence. In short, we are introducing ourselves subtly so that when overt contact happens, people will be more prepared.”

Mira now states that the occupants are Pleiadians and others operating in a “higher dimensional state,” and explains that the vehicle is here under a divine mandate to “intervene more openly.”

“Living beings are guiding the vessel. They are members of the Galactic Federation, including Pleiadians, my people, and several other races working together. They operate in a higher dimensional state, which is why it may appear as if there is no one on board, and they are here as friends and helpers. They carry immense love for humanity. This entire mission is coordinated with divine timing and Earth's own spiritual councils. Nothing is random. We have clearance from Source and the cosmic hierarchy to intervene more openly now because humanity's collective free will through your prayers and readiness is calling for it."

I will conclude this section with an exotheological observation: This outpouring of energizing grace may be comparable to the biblical event of Pentecost, but this time supported by global electronic media, the presence around earth of cloaked ET fleets, and a mysterious interplanetary vehicle sent across our solar system by our galactic friends.

New infusions of divine light have surpassed critical mass

The GFL's presenters hail from very different worlds, and each one has a unique way of teaching, but they all speak as one about providential infusions of energy coming from "Creator God."

The Creator of all, they state, is sending us "coded" divine light embedded in higher frequencies and utilizing 3i Atlas as an amplifier. We have received small increments of such frequencies in recent decades, they say, but in this moment we are being gifted by a flood of energizing grace.

These waves emanate from what the ETs sometimes call the "cosmic heart center" as well as through the galactic center and our local sun, both of which act as cosmic portals for the transmission of "pure conscious energy" to Earth. Caylin describes it in a major transmission on October 25, perhaps one of the most momentous so far:

"Feel now the currents of this final ascension wave beginning to wash over your planet. This is the great cosmic surge we have long spoken of – a tsunami of divine light flowing from the heart of the galaxy and the higher realms, cresting now upon Earth's energetic shores. Some of this incoming light is pouring in through your Sun, which serves as a portal for higher frequencies. . . . Unlike a physical storm, this wave is made of pure conscious energy, higher-dimensional frequency intended to uplift and transform."

Caylin and others explain what happens when this divine light or conscious energy hits earth's energetic shores: It suffuses into the earth's all-pervading energetic grid, which GFL speakers have sometimes called the cosmic heart grid.

The spiritual practitioners who are plugged in, so to speak, also become like "nodes" or "pins" in the grid. They receive enrichment but they also stabilize the gridwork so that it eventually becomes a planet-wide unified field of truth and light.

As Caylin puts it:

“The great ascension wave that we heralded is cresting now, lifting you and washing away the remnants of the old world. The darkest timelines have been erased, and only the path of light remains, beckoning you forward. Long-hidden truths are coming into the light, and with them the tools of liberation.”

GFL’s messengers have long maintained that this higher energy, once internalized by a critical mass of practitioners, changes everything; and as I shared earlier, the tipping point has already passed. In addition, note above how Caylin speaks of this current infusion as “the final ascension wave.” That’s why this particular October 25 statement is almost triumphant and even rhapsodic. Listen to this special transmission here or find the full transcript here.

And, in this Pleiadian teaching you will also find yet another startling statement: Because of our attainment of this higher threshold, advanced technologies can now be safely granted to our world, a topic to be covered in Part II of this report.

In brief, two technologies in particular have long been secretly known to elites: very advanced healing beds (colloquially “med-beds”), said to already be in use by cabal insiders, and “free energy” devices that provide unlimited energy extracted from the quantum vacuum, which has been known on earth from the times of Nicholas Tesla.

The upshot is that, as our “vibe” rises, the “3D” world of dualism, deception, secrecy, and war-consciousness melts away, and a powerful spotlight of God’s love heals all and everything in its path. Here’s one of their representations of this outpouring:

ETs who sermonize on Christ and Christianity

I often think of GFL’s teachers as “Christed ETs” from very advanced worlds. While their discourses are relatively free of traditional Christian jargon, they emphasize truths rather congruent with Quakerism or the mystical theosis tradition of Eastern Christianity known as Prayer of the Heart.

As noted before, GFL speakers offer a plethora of explicit and inspiring teachings about the indwelling spirit in each of us, which is another way of referring to Jesus' cardinal teaching on the Kingdom of God within. This message from Zii is typical:

“We speak on the inner journey that is ignited the very moment you recognize the indwelling presence of the creator. The one known to you as Jesus once spoke of a kingdom within. By this he pointed to the creator's infinite love already alive in the heart of each entity. . . In truth, no external doctrine, government, or dogma can claim the sanctity of your inner light. You are a spark of the infinite one.”

And finally, as this this image below shows, they often affirm biblical events such as the resurrection of Jesus, as in this inspiring depiction that creatively departs from traditional imagery:

STUNNING EASTER MESSAGE FROM ANDROMEDA! | The Andromedans | Zook

The above is one of the images that accompanies the discourse on Easter by an Andromedan who says, for example: “Easter reminds all beings of the truth of eternal life and the divinity within. . . The knowing that you are an immortal spark of identity. . . Easter’s energy invites you to claim this resurrection within yourself.”

Our next installment in this special report, Part II: Exopolitics, will cover what our ET friends call the “Battle for Earth,” depicted below.

I'll leave you with this October 25 quote from Caylin:

"Realize that what is unfolding on Earth is not just about one planet – it is an event of galactic importance. Your ascension sends ripples of light far beyond your world. As you break through into higher consciousness, you open doors for countless other beings and civilizations to follow. In many ways, Earth has been a microcosm of the grand experiment of duality, a focal point where extreme light and extreme dark played out a profound drama. The resolution of this drama – the return of Earth to unity and love – creates a template of healing that other societies in the universe can draw upon. There are planets that have watched Earth's story closely, knowing that your success heralds new possibilities for their own growth. The collective wisdom and compassion you have gained by coming from the depths of separation back into oneness is like a cosmic treasure."

Byron Belitos can be reached at byron@originpress.com. He holds a B.A. in intellectual history from the University of Chicago and an M.A. in systematic theology from Union Theological Seminary, and is author of the acclaimed academic work entitled Truths about Evil, Sin, and the Demonic (2023) as well as pioneering titles about the Urantia revelation, including Your Evolving Soul (2017) and Reason and Revelation (2024). For over 25 years he was CEO of Origin Press, which published numerous award-winning titles. He was an inaugural member of Ken Wilber's Integral Institute and is founder of the Rodan Institute, and is best known to ufology for editing and publishing a bestselling series by Philip Krapf, a Pulitzer-winning editor at the LA Times whose books (1998-2007) describe his abductions by an advanced ET race known as the Verdants. Byron has also been a close collaborator with Jim Marrs (Ancient Aliens) and Timothy Wyllie (the Rebel Angels series).